

Anthony had multiple siblings and although they had disagreements, which is not unheard of, there was lots of love. One sibling, his only brother, known as Pooh: they argued, fussed and sometimes fought constantly, but he was his true best friend. When you saw one, you would see the other and if not, one or the other was not too far behind. Pooh will definitely miss Anthony. His baby sister Kim: who he did not play about, would always try to go everywhere he went as if she was one of the boys. he made sure her doors were always open to him as well as making sure he ate. He could call on her for anything and she would be right there. One of his older sisters, Tee: who knows both of her brothers are knuckleheads, but they could pull up to her house anytime. Even if she did not want to be bothered she would still open the door for Anthony. His eldest sister, Shirley: who he texted every morning. However, he never wanted her to know if he got into any trouble, because she would try to be his second mama and he did not want to hear it. Anthony was truly passionate about several of his nieces and nephews. He had a very close bond with them. He also took in and helped several children through the years that were not his. Anthony was truly a family man with a big heart.

Anthony leaves to cherish his memory: his one and only daughter, Aenea; his mother, Callie and father, Gemes; sisters, Shirley (Elliott) of Houston, Texas, Theresa (John), and Kimberly; one brother, Gemes III; a grandson, Jeremiah; twenty nieces and nephews, a host aunts, uncles, cousins and numerous loved friends that were like brothers and sisters and a special friend, Sheila.

Obituary

Anthony Cortez Brewer, was born on December 29, 1960, to Callie and Gemes Brewer in Cleveland, Ohio. He was the fourth out of five children.

Anthony accepted Jesus Christ as his Savior and was baptized at the age of twelve, under the leadership of Pastor Walter L. Boykins, Sr.

Anthony attended Clara Tagg Brewer Elementary, Charles W. Eliot Junior and John F. Kennedy High School. During his high school years is when his daughter, Aenea was born; who instantly became his true love. Troubled life kept him away at times, however, that didn't stop his love and affection for his baby.

Anthony, as stated by his mother saw a passion at an early age in taking apart and rebuilding things. This later grew to the assistance of helping his father at numerous raceways with the 1933 Willy's Wheelstander Peacemaker. Anthony had an eye for making things, he has made things such as a jewelry box for his daughter, a grandfather clock for his mother, a ship as well as a 18 wheeler truck for his father and various other things; all from matchsticks.

Anthony liked attending parties if not trying to give one. He didn't just attend everyone's party, he was the life of the party. Anthony was more than a friend, he was family and treated everyone as such. You could always here someone say " I just saw Anthony, I was just with Anthony." Somehow those statements were always true.

Anthony was always somewhere helping someone, he would lend a helping hand as much as he could. If he didn't have it, he would truly try to get it for you. He had a strong love for his mother, as to many she is called mama or mama Brewer. Anthony was sure to call his mother every single day to check on her and well as to let her know how he was doing.

Anthony's favorite pastimes were attending his father's races and checking in on the elderly. He enjoyed taking many pictures and shooting pool with his personalized pool stick. To many, it is a surprise that Anthony had a very artistic hand; he loved to draw. He also enjoyed talking on his cellular phone always utilizing the speaker, as if he did not know how to speak regular. Later, social media became his daily.
